Key vocabulary

UK GDPR — Core UK personal-data legal framework.

DPA 2018 — UK Data Protection Act currently in force.

Computer Misuse Act — Law concerning unauthorised computer access/attacks.

copyright — Rights governing use of protected works.

RIPA — Regulation of Investigatory Powers Act 2000.

New learning

Understand — Study the four Acts named in the H446 specification for exam terminology, but do not confuse the historical Data Protection Act 1998 with current law.

Apply — Current UK personal-data processing is principally governed by UK GDPR and the Data Protection Act 2018, with later amendments. Lawful processing, fairness, transparency and data minimisation are key principles.

Evaluate — The Computer Misuse Act concerns unauthorised computer access and attacks; copyright law protects qualifying creative works; RIPA addresses particular investigatory powers and safeguards, not a general licence for anyone to monitor communications.

Worked example

A school publishes identifiable pupil progress data online without appropriate lawful basis. Which legal area is central?

1. Predict first — Identifiable progress records are personal data; assess a lawful basis, purpose, fairness, security and privacy duties.

2. Explain — For current UK law use UK GDPR and DPA 2018, while recognising the older Act named in OCR wording.

We Do · Practise with guidance

Someone deliberately signs into a colleague's account without permission and copies files. Which law is directly relevant?

Unauthorised account access → Computer Misuse Act 1990.
Copying protected content may create separate issues.

Predict first

BLACK PEN Answer all questions first. GREEN PEN Then: tick and rewrite mistakes.

The key fact is intentional access without authorisation, engaging computer misuse offences.

Explain

Additional misuse of copied data may raise data-protection or copyright questions depending on the facts.

Question 1

Name the four Acts explicitly listed in OCR H446 1.5.1. [4]

Question 2

A pupil gains access to staff records using a stolen login. Explain the legal concerns and data-handling implications. [6]

Question 3

Explain the difference between OCR's named DPA 1998 and current UK data-protection law, then apply lawful and secure processing to a school AI system. [6]

Exit Ticket · Answer before checking

Because OCR lists DPA 1998, that Act is the current primary UK data-protection legislation.

Q1. DPA 1998 [1]; Computer Misuse Act 1990 [1]; Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988 [1]; RIPA 2000 [1].

Q2. Unauthorised access CMA [2]; identifiable records require data-protection handling [2]; secure access/reporting and appropriate response [2].

Q3. 1998 Act historic/spec wording [1]; UK GDPR/DPA 2018 current [2]; lawful basis/purpose and minimisation [1]; security/accountability [1]; explainability/privacy safeguarding [1].

Exit Ticket · Model answer

False. Current law is chiefly UK GDPR and the DPA 2018, as amended.
